REYKJAVÍK ARTS FESTIVAL MAY 12 - JUNE 5

The Reykjavík Arts Festival is the harbinger of spring in Iceland's vibrant capital. We look forward to introducing the Festival's Program to you in March.

Presale of tickets starts in March

This year's programme offers a varied and colourful blend of big and small events in all fields of art; theatre, dance, music, literature and visual arts. This year's Festival focus is on photography with numerous international and Icelandic photo exhibitions.

Festival guests will have the opportunity to attend concerts and readings in artists' studios and writers' own homes, as well as enjoy exceptional acts and performances on the city's big stages.

Reykjavík is a great place to visit

Reykjavík is a city of pure energy and enjoys the best of two worlds: the qualities of a modern, forward looking society, complemented by a close connection to beautiful unspoilt nature. The Reykjavík Arts Festival collaborates with the airline Iceland Express as well as Center Hotels, who assist us in welcoming foreign artists as well as Festival guests. Check out their websites to explore the full range of possibilities for travelling to and staying in Reykjavík.

The Festival's forty- year history

The first Reykjavík Arts Festival was held in summer 1970. Ever since then the Festival has been a leading force on the Icelandic cultural scene and has been instrumental in bringing world-class artists to the Icelandic nation. The Festival has also actively and successfully helped to promote Iceland and the Icelandic nation internationally.

The complete Reykjavík Arts Festival programmes from the beginning can be viewed here, giving a taste of the spirit of art and culture over the past four decades.
